THE TRUSTS AND IMPERIALISM

ISSUES DISCUSSED BY EX-GOV. JARVIS

A Splendid Speech in the Court House Last Night—Consent of the Government—The People Principle of Free Government—The People Should be Sovereigns—Republican Policies Lead to Oligarchy and Empire—The Growth of Trusts During McKinley's Administration.

On account of an engagement to speak at Danbury today, Major Guthrie was unable to speak in the court-house last night, as had been advertised. He will be here Thursday night, however, and speak. Ex-Governor Jarvis was on hand and spoke for more than an hour, making a plain, straightforward speech, and presenting his facts plainly and impressively.

The speaker was gracefully introduced by Col. John A. Barringer, who referred to the momentous issues involved in the present campaign as unequalled in the history of the country. In referring to the issue of trusts he said: "We are so far from the teachings of our fathers who laid the foundations of this government that the question today is, 'Shall the trusts own and control the people, or shall the people control the trusts?'"

Mr. Jarvis was greeted with applause and expressed his gratitude at again being able to address a Greensboro audience. He said he would discuss briefly two of the vital issues of the campaign, and as a sort of basis or text for his remarks quoted a section from the declaration of rights in the constitution of North Carolina: "A frequent recurrence to the fundamental principles of government is absolutely necessary for the preservation of the blessings of liberty."

"These words come to us tonight," said Mr. Jarvis, "as the voice of our fathers from the tomb. Some of the profoundest thinkers and grandest patriots of our day declare in this the closing year of the nineteenth century that some of the fundamental principles upon which our government rests are being insidiously and dangerously undermined. If this be found to be true, the people ought to rise above party and cast their votes with that party and for those men who are seeking to remedy these evils."

"If I were asked to name in one sentence the basic principle upon which free government rests I would quote from the Declaration of Independence that matchless sentence penned by Thomas Jefferson: 'All government derives its just powers from the consent of the governed.' Prior to that time the world's idea had been that all power rested with the crown. The Declaration of Independence reversed this idea and said the people were sovereign. The two ideas conflicted and led to war, as conflict of opinion had so often before led to strife. The people triumphed in the struggle, and upon this constitution they buidied a government which has been the pride of America and the glory of the world. There is nothing like it in the history of the world; it's the people's glory. Is it possible that anybody wants a change? I say the man that does ought to be cursed eternally with a curse."

"And yet it is charged against the party in power that it is supporting policies which is undermining the principles of our government, and which, if not checked, will lead to oligarchy, if not to empire. This charge is made not only by Democrats, but by hundreds of patriotic and life-long Republicans."

Mr. Jarvis then took up the question of trusts and showed that their tendency was to undermine the system of government created by our fathers. He said there were bad trusts and worse trusts, but no good trusts, as some Republicans have asserted. To illustrate their oppressive power, he referred to the American Tobacco Company and the jute bagging trust. In 1889 the jute bagging factories entered into a combination and increased the price of their product just 100 per cent., this being made possible by the protective tariff. To substantiate the assertion that the policy of the Republican party promotes trusts, he read statistics which showed that there are in the United States 254 incorporated trusts, of which 158 have been organized since the inauguration of President McKinley. There are 135 unincor-

SUPPRESSING DISORDER.

Ten Thousand Chinese Troops Engaged. East River Infested With Pirates.

By Wire to The Telegram

Paris, Oct. 16.—A dispatch from Hong Kong says over ten thousand Chinese troops are engaged in suppressing disorders in the territory adjacent to Hong Kong. The East river is infested with pirates, who have blocked the channel. The town of Waych-Cu is in possession of rebels, who are devastating the whole country. A mixed column, including three hundred and sixty Indian troops, proceeded yesterday to the frontier colony. On the previous night a Chinese rabble attacked the Portuguese guards at Macao but were repulsed.

The whole of Delta is in rebellion under the leadership of Kang Yu Wei Sun Yate Sen and a secret society known as Triads.

CANADIAN SURVEY COMPLETED.

BOUNDARY CUTS MINE HALF IN TWO.

One of the Richest Mines in the Section Dissected But Not Yet Known Which Side Gets the Pickings—Canada Gets Only One Mile of Her Claim for Two—America Gets the Most Valuable Mines.

By Wire to The Telegram

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—The Canadian survey has reported that the international boundary line at Mount Baber was completed late Saturday and the officials employed therein arrived at Vancouver yesterday. Surveyor Dean says that all the valuable mines in the best of the mineral belt are in the American territory, but Canada is given about a mile of extra territory instead of the two miles originally claimed by Canada.

The gold basin, however, has been found to be in a peculiar position. Its tunnel is said to be cut in half by the boundary line, leaving half of a mine, one of the richest in the district, on the American side and the other portion on the Canadian side, but which is the golden section of the mine is not related.

RAN INTO A WRECK.

The Captain of the Neptune Reports a Probable Disaster.

By Wire to The Telegram

New York, Oct. 16.—Captain Walters, of the steamer Neptune, arrived this morning, and reports that while steaming up the coast he sighted a steamer, apparently a Morgan liner, lying still, about three miles east of the lights. On approaching, the Neptune heard some person shout "keep off," and the Neptune steered away, suddenly running into a large quantity of wreckage consisting of spars and rigging. The wreck appeared to be a schooner. He supposed a steamer had been in collision with the schooner.

Another Capture by Filipinos.

By Wire to The Telegram

Manila, Oct. 16.—A detachment of twenty men of Company I, twenty-fourth Infantry, colored, while repairing a telegraph line near Cabanatuan, was attacked and overwhelmed by two hundred rebels. Seven men succeeded in reaching the camp and reported the matter. The remainder were probably captured.

Marshal Millikan carried along William Honeycutt, the Mitchell county desperado, who is to be tried at this term for the murder of Deputy Marshal Grier.

STORY OF THE GOEBEL PLOT.

GOV. TAYLOR CALLED ON TO DECIDE

"If Goebel is Killed Do You Think I Can Hold My Office?" Asked Taylor—"Well, Tell Them to Go Ahead"—Youtsey in Court on a Bed, and Judge Cantrill Decides That the Trial Must Go On—Arthur Goebel Notes Youtsey's Confession.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 15.—The trial of Henry E. Youtsey, charged with being a principal in the killing of Governor Goebel, was resumed today, although Youtsey was reported in the same condition as last week. His room door was opened and his bed pulled up in plain view and hearing of the jury, and while the witnesses were being examined Youtsey could be heard calling his wife's name in a hollow, moaning voice, and could be seen to be sitting on his bed. The feature of the day was the testimony of Arthur Goebel, brother of the dead Governor. He told of going to the jail the day Youtsey was arrested, and then said: "I put my left hand on Mr. Youtsey's right shoulder and said: 'Mr. Youtsey, Col. Campbell has just returned and told me what you have said to him and I have come over to have you tell me what you have told him, to tell whether it is true, and to ask you a few other questions.' Mr. Youtsey said: 'Yes, Mr. Goebel, what I have told Col. Campbell is true.'"

"I then said to Youtsey: 'Now, I would like to have you tell about getting the key on Monday morning from Powers, and about Dick Combs, and also about going to see Taylor on Tuesday morning and where you got the cartridges.' Youtsey said: 'Just as I told Col. Campbell, I had a talk with Dick Combs on Monday morning and he told me that he was ready to do the shooting, and I went to Caleb Powers for the key to his office and he told me to go to John Powers. I went to John Powers and John Powers gave me the key. I went to Governor Taylor and told him that Dick Combs was ready to do the shooting. Governor Taylor said: 'You ought not to come to me about this. I have been expecting this to bedone for some time, but I object to having a negro do it. It is too important a piece of work. Combs may be a spy and he may betray us.' Youtsey hesitated and I said: 'Very well; what did you do next?' Youtsey said: 'I left Governor Taylor and on Tuesday morning I went back to him and said: 'The man to do the shooting is now here.'"

"I interrupted Youtsey there and said: 'You have told Col. Campbell the name of that man and that is one reason why I came over here to see you. Now if you know that much, you can also give me the name of that man, and Mr. Youtsey said: 'Well, I told him Jim Howard was here; that I thought he got here Monday night.'"

"I asked: 'What else did Taylor say?' Youtsey said: 'Governor Taylor walked up and down the floor and said: 'Youtsey, what do you think—if Goebel is killed, do you think I could hold my office?' He discussed that matter, talking to me back and forth and I said to him I thought if Goebel was put out of the way that the contest would be settled and that he could hold his office. Finally I said to him, as Governor Taylor hesitated still: 'It is up to you to decide now finally whether it is to be done or not,' and after some more hesitation, Youtsey stated that Taylor said finally: 'Well, tell them to go ahead. If it is necessary, I can send the man to the mountains with a squad of soldiers.' I said: 'Did he say anything about pardoning him?' And Youtsey said: 'Yes, that is so, he said: 'If it is necessary, I can pardon and he will be safe enough.' Youtsey then stopped and I asked: 'What did you do then?' You told Col. Campbell, as he told me that you let certain people into Powers' office.' Youtsey said: 'Yes, I went back and reported. I told Berry Howard and Dick Combs and Jim Howard to go and be in the hall of the executive building and I then left.' I said: 'What did you do?' Youtsey said: 'I went and got the cartridges. When I went back Berry Howard, Dick Combs and Jim Howard were in the hall and I unlocked the door and let them in and gave them the cartridges. I again interrupted and asked Youtsey as to whom he had given the cartridges and he said: 'I gave them to Jim Howard. He was the last man who went in the door.' I said: 'How many did you give him?' and he said: 'I gave him the whole box.' I said: 'Mr. Youtsey, who fired the shot?' and he said: 'I cannot tell you; I didn't see him.' I said: 'What did you do when you let him in?' He said: 'I stood near the door.' I said: 'You gave the cartridges to Jim Howard?' 'Yes, sir.' 'Where did you get the cartridges?' He said: 'Got them from Powell & Clements, on Main street, in Cincinnati. On the 22nd of January I wrote them and told them to send a box of 38-55 smokeless steel cartridges, Winchester.' I said: 'Was he shot with a Winchester rifle?' He said: 'The cartridges fit either a Winchester or a Marlin.' I said: 'How much did you send them?' He said: 'Sent them a postoffice order for a dollar.'

Judge Cantrill, in overruling the motion, said that all the rights of the defendant will be preserved under the law. He said he had no discretion in the matter and that the trial must proceed.

DELIGHTFULLY ENTERTAINED.

MISS MURRAY'S CHARMING AT HOME

One of the Most Pleasant Social Affairs of the Season Given by Miss Nettie Murray Last Night in Honor of Miss Taylor, of Mt. Airy—The Hours Were From 9 to 12. The Company Regaled With Excellent Music—A Dainty Supper.

Decidedly one of the most recherche and enjoyable events of the season was the "At Home" given last evening by Miss Nettie Murray, in honor of her guest, Miss Kate Taylor, of Mt. Airy.

Aside from the purely social features of the evening, the guests were delighted with excellent music. Solos were sung by Mr. Wesley White, Miss Lola Carraway, and Mr. Clarence Thomas, a Richmond gentleman. A farewell quartette was rendered by Messrs. James Mann, Richard Crawford, Ney Forbis and Dr. J. S. Betts.

At 11.30 o'clock a dainty supper, consisting of all the delicacies of the season, was served in the dining hall, and at 12 o'clock the guests departed.

Those present were Miss Kate Taylor, of Mt. Airy; Miss Alice May Staples, of Ridsville; Miss Anna Mulford, of Philadelphia, and Misses Minnie Reid, Lola Carraway, Lola Reid, Daisy Carraway, Bertha Wheeler, Mozelle Andrews, May Harrison, Katherine Jeter, Minnie Lyon, Mary Belle White, Nan Wood, Sarah DeButts, Minnie Whitsett, Mary Lindsay, Johnnie Rankin, Nettie Murray, Ruth Wharton, and Messrs. J. S. Kuykendall, Charles Harrison, Dr. J. S. Betts, Dr. J. H. Wheeler, Eugene McNairy, Walter Ridenhour, Richard Crawford, Mike Reeves, R. E. Reeves, Jim Mann, Lacey Sellers, Bernie Gilmer, Clarke Porter, J. Wesley White, O. C. McLean, Clarence Thomas, of Richmond; Frank Leak, Rev. Charles Hodgins, Ney Forbis, Fuller Reid, Charles Cunningham, George Patterson, E. B. Broadhurst, Dr. Edmund Harrison, Charles Murray, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Wharton and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Murray.

STRIKERS MAKE A RAID.

Over Two Thousand Descend Upon the Lehigh Collieries and Clash With Troops.

By Wire to The Telegram

Lansford, Oct. 16.—Over two thousand and strikers have made a descent on ten collieries of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company in the Panther Creek Valley. They came to the place by two different roads. One crowd shut up the Nesquehoning colliery. The other mob was driven back to Tamaqua and dispersed by a battalion of troops after an exciting time. None was hurt. Troops had been ordered to the district last night in expectation of trouble.

Paris, Oct. 16.—At a cabinet council today M. Delcasse announced that all the powers have accepted the French note as a basis of negotiations.

Mr. William Walters Dead.

Mr. William Walters, a wood workman at the Cape Fear Manufacturing Company's plant, died last night at his home on South Cedar street, after an illness of about a week. Mr. Walters was about 35 years old. He leaves a wife and children.

GREAT RECEPTION IN COTHAM.

BRYAN AND STEVENSON IN THE CITY.

Dick Croker is Laying Himself Out to do the Thing in Great Shape—Mounted Escort Meets the Democratic Candidate at the Grand Central Station and Escorts Him to the Hoffman House—To Take Dinner With Croker—The Demonstration Tonight Will be the Biggest Ever Seen in the Metropolis.

By Wire to The Telegram

New York, Oct. 16.—Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic candidate for Vice-President, arrived in this city this morning and was given a rousing reception.

Tonight occurs the demonstration in this city in honor of William J. Bryan. Preparations of a most elaborate character have been made with the idea of making the reception to be tendered the Democratic nominee the most spectacular and most memorable welcome ever extended to a candidate for political honors in the history of America. Mr. Bryan's train arrived at 2.55 this afternoon. A mounted escort of 28 policemen met Colonel Bryan at the Grand Central station and conducted him to the Hoffman House. This escort will be in attendance on Colonel Bryan during the day and night. One hundred patrolmen kept the streets in the vicinity of the Hoffman House clear of the crowd. The mounted escort will conduct the candidate and committee to Madison Square Garden in the evening. During the meeting 10 captains and 585 patrolmen will be in the vicinity of the Garden.

Mr. Bryan held an informal reception shortly after his arrival. He will be Mr. Croker's guest at dinner at 5 o'clock. There will be meetings at Madison Square Garden, Cooper Union and Tammany Hall and a number of open air gatherings. The Bryan ratification committee held a meeting last night to perfect details. Mr. Croker in an interview then said:

"The Republicans have been trying to throw cold water on this meeting. We will show them what the people think of Mr. Bryan. It will be the biggest thing that has happened in this city for many years. There will be a lot of lies told about the matter, but the people will see for themselves."

A STRENUOUS PREACHER.

Carries His Shot Gun to Meeting and Stops Praying Long Enough to Use It. New Orleans Dispatch.

A young man named Simpson announced his determination to break up the holiness meeting being conducted by Parson Howell in the woods near Many, this State. Howell heard of Simpson's intention and held services last night with a muzzle-loading shot gun on his shoulder, explaining to his flock that he had come prepared to protect them. Simpson bore down on the assemblage during prayer and announced his presence with a whoop. Howell stopped in the middle of a sentence, raised his gun, pulled the trigger and then continued his prayer. After the "Amen" the congregation picked up Simpson and found both his legs had been peppered with squirrel shot.

A Horse Thief's Work.

The horse thief is abroad in the land. When Mr. Joe Burton, of Jamestown, went to his stables this morning he missed a fine nine-year-old horse which had been stolen during the night. He tracked the animal for quite a distance in the direction of Greensboro, losing the trail near the Fair grounds.

Mr. Burton thinks two persons were implicated in the robbery.

Later in the day the horse was found near Pomona, where he had probably been left.

Death of Miss Fulford.

After an illness of ten days, Miss S. Josephine Fulford died at noon today at the home of her brother-in-law, Mr. W. B. Bogart, on Church street, Miss Fulford was a native of Newbern, where she resided until seven or eight years ago, when she came to Greensboro to make her home with Mr. Bogart's family.

The funeral will be held from St. Barnabas Episcopal church tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

RALEIGH NEGRO'S IMPUDENCE.

A VILE INSULT TO A YOUNG LADY.

Sent to Roads for 60 Days and Will Not Afterwards Be Permitted to Live in the City—Artesian Wells Likely to be on a Room in North Carolina—Penitentiary Crop of Cotton Will be 1,500 Bales—State Literary Association to Meet on the 25th—Large Docket in U. S. Court at Elizabeth City.

Special Correspondence of The Telegram.

RALEIGH, October 16.—Judge Purnell, Marshal Dockery, District Attorney Bernard and other officials of the U. S. district court are at Elizabeth City this week. The docket there is the heaviest on record, having nine cases. Usually it is a one day court. The district and circuit courts are now held together.

A lumber dealer who keeps in touch with scores, perhaps hundreds, of saw mills, says that they are shutting down in great numbers south of here, owing to lack of water. So great a scarcity of water was never known. Artesian wells offer the only remedy. There is sure to be an artesian well boom in North Carolina. There is plenty of water underground.

Sunday evening a few moments before church services began, a negro, named Wimberly, an employee at the stone quarry here, aged about 30, out of utter villainess, perpetrated a nameless indignity upon a young lady near a church. With great presence of mind she called a physician and asked him to catch the man. This the physician did at once, chasing the scoundrel, tripping him and holding him down. The negro was placed in the station house. Indignation was intense, and a large number of young men, at least forty, gathered with the purpose of taking the man out of the station house and performing an unmentionable operation upon him. But the bolder spirits could not get the others to go to this extreme. Yesterday morning the negro pleaded guilty and was sent to the roads for 60 days. When his term expires he will not be permitted to live here. It was said by a lawyer later in the day that the assault was an aggravated one and that the case was beyond the jurisdiction of the mayor.

Republicans here say Oliver H. Dockery accepts the nomination for Congress from the sixth district.

The State charters the Cole Manufacturing Company, of Charlotte, which will make cotton and corn planters and other agricultural implements. E. A. Cole and others are the stockholders.

The penitentiary authorities say that by November 15 all the cotton will be picked at the Roanoke farms. They also say the crop will be 1,500 bales. Last year it was 3,000, but the acreage was twice as large. This time the acreage in peanuts is nearly four times as large as it was last year.

The Supreme Court will devote this week to the hearing of appeals from the fourth district.

The State Literary Association, recently formed, and of which Justice Walter Clark is president, will meet in the music hall of the new Raney memorial library October 25. It will be in an informal fashion the dedication of that building, which is perhaps the most beautiful in North Carolina. One line of the work of the association will be the collection of objects and papers relating to North Carolina history for the historical hall in the new annex to the State museum.

ARRESTS IN JOHNSTON.

Prominent Men Charged With Intimidation and Taken Before U. S. Commissioner. News and Observer.

News has been received here to the effect that a large number of the most prominent Democrats in Johnston county have been arrested and taken before United States Commissioner Parker, who is also the Republican county chairman, and bound over to the Federal court on a charge of intimidating voters in the last election.

Among those upon whom the papers have been served by the United States Marshal are lawyers, ex-members of the Legislature, county officers and prominent political workers.

Already several attorneys have volunteered their services to defend these men, and the indignation manifested in the community over the institution of such suits is intense and bitter.

Parker is the man who had the military called out during the recent campaign to protect him when he tried to break up a Democratic speaking and failed.

It is believed that these suits are instituted by the Republicans for the purpose of making an attempt to throw out Johnston's vote in the November Congressional election, if it is found that by so doing they can get up a contest for Pou's seat.

is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking post, as it were, in regard to prices.

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity.

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been to low and are just now getting reasonable. Your children will be glad to build at double the price it now costs you. It is a trite, but true saying, if you want to build, "Now is the time."

porated trusts, 109 having been organized during the present administration. Prior to the election of McKinley the combined capital of the trusts was $1,189,000,000. It is now $4,630,333,000. The protective tariff policy of the Republican party, the speaker declared, was the fostering parent of the trusts.

Continuing, Mr. Jarvis said: "You will find all the trust magnates in the ranks of the Republican party and pouring contributions into the Republican campaign fund, for they know that so long as the Republican policy prevails the trusts will flourish and prosper. Another thing they know: If the Democratic party goes into power it will be a death blow to trusts. The first Republican President this country ever had stood for a government of the people, for the people and by the people. The last stands for a government of the trusts, for the trusts and by the trusts."

"I have no war to make on wealth, but I believe the laws should be such as when men combine to destroy they will be made to halt. And I believe we should elect men of honesty and courage to make and enforce laws against unlawful and unholy combinations. McKinley is the creature and friend of trusts, and if he should be re-elected they would continue during the next four years as they have within the past four years. We know that if Bryan is elected we will have a man for President who will make war on the trusts. Therefore vote for the man that the trusts are afraid of."

In speaking of imperialism Mr. Jarvis said that when the Philippines were ceded to the United States our troubles began. We launched upon an unknown sea and began an untried experiment. For two years we have had an army in the Philippines, and today we have 60,000 soldiers there making war on those people because they, like our fathers, desire to govern themselves. While the expense of this war is $300,000,000 a year, no tax is levied on trusts and accumulated wealth to carry it on.

While in the Senate Mr. Jarvis saw much of Bryan, who was then a member of the House of Representatives, and in closing his speech he spoke of the great leader's interest in the welfare of the whole people. He also paid a high compliment to Congressman Kitchen and said he wanted to see Guilford county roll up a big majority to help in returning him to Congress, where he has served the people so faithfully.

Wholesome Discipline.

Perhaps fagging in English schools is the one medicine for snobbishness in a land where classes are rigidly defined. For at least a short period in his early life, the "noble lord of high degree" is no better than anybody else. An old Harrow boy says that he can never forget a certain clergyman's look of blank astonishment when he was told that the magnate of his neighborhood had been a breakfast fag at school, and had been "whopped" by his fag master for dropping sardine oil into the teapot. When Lord M., who became a duke, was at Westminster school, he bought something from an apple woman, and gave her sixpence, out of which she handed back the change. "You may keep them," said his lordship, refusing the pennies. "I never carry coppers." An older boy, a senior, was looking on, and asked him why he refused the change. "Coppers are a horrid bore," said Lord M. "I can't be troubled with them." Then the big boy sent for a sixpenny worth of halfpence, and ordered his "indship" to carry them in his trousers pocket, ready to be produced on demand.—Youth's Companion.

New Material in Paper-Making.

It has been demonstrated that paper can be manufactured in the south at a handsome profit—the mill at Pensacola, Fla., which has been in successful operation for some months, proves the fact beyond question. This mill is using pitch pine for pulp-making. Recent experiments have shown the availability of wild cane, which grows in vast quantities throughout the southern states, for this purpose.—Chicago Chronicle.

It is said that President Lincoln thus replied to a letter asking for a sentiment and his autograph: "Dear Madam: When you ask of a stranger that which is of interest only to yourself always inclose a stamp. There's your sentiment and here's your autograph: A. Lincoln."—Youth's Companion.

MODERATION AND FORBEARANCE.

The war cry of the age is organization. We see it as a growth in every branch of human activity. Men first formed partnerships the better to carry on business enterprises, then corporations, and now, having to some extent successively outgrown each of these, we have the union of corporations themselves. These unions may be for different objects. Sometimes there is the complete union for all purposes of business, at other times merely a temporary action in concert for the accomplishment of some specific purpose, as the curtailment of product, the regulation of labor or control of the market. This principle of organization has extended to labor, and we have the labor organizations for protection of their members and the control of the price of their product—labor. We take it as axiomatic that if capital has a right to organize for mutual protection and advantage, labor has that same right.

Some days ago some disagreement occurred in the Thomas M. Holt mill, in Alamance, between an operative and a boss. The operative, a member of a labor organization, the Textile Union, violated some small rule and was discharged. The Union demanded the discharge of the boss. This was refused by the management of the mill, and as a result of the squabble, the entire force that were members of the Union, quit work and walked out. It thus appears that the Union was entirely in the wrong, unreasonable and headstrong. Then the "Cora" and the "Granite" mills were at once shut down by their owners. The owners of the various mills in the country met in conference, and on the following day, all but two or three of them posted notices saying that all members of labor unions might consider that they were notified that their services would be no longer needed, and that the mills hereafter would employ no person who was a member of a union. Speaking of this notice, the Alamance Gleaner says:

Thursday night we learned about the notice, but did not see a copy of it till we read it in the Charlotte Observer Friday morning. In the same paper in which the notice appeared we read of a conference between the "Southern Cotton Spinners' Association and the cotton yarn dealers," the latter of Philadelphia, making a new schedule of prices, that is, increasing the price of yarns.

We read the item over again to make sure that we were not mistaken, and the matter presented itself to us this way: The mill owners organize for the promotion of their business; the operatives organize, too, it is presumed, for their individual welfare. And we could not see why one has not the same liberty to organize as the other. Both classes are citizens of a common country, naturally dependent, if confined to the cotton mill business. Neither is to be condemned for organizing, if held within the proper and lawful bounds, which presents a question for sober consideration.

As the facts come to us, we do not think the course of the Textile Union at Haw River is justified, because the operative was not discharged for being a member of the Union, but on account of violating the rules and being disrespectful toward a superior whose duty it was to maintain a proper discipline in order to conduct the business given him in charge. The "boss" may have been disagreeable, but the wrong course was pursued to get rid of him. So long as the Textile Union's acts are reasonable no one should or would find fault.

Now, two wrongs do not make a right, nevertheless the mill owners met and made a sweeping order and gave notice to all members of labor unions, as will be seen in the above notice. There was trouble at no other mill, and why should the owners organize to stamp out the organization of their help—those who served them?

Our mill owners are gentlemen of large means and abroad represent largely the intelligence of our country. Unto them much having been given of them much is required. Of them broad, liberal citizenship is justly and properly expected, and as citizens of large wealth they owe it to themselves and to the community to be more liberal and conservative than the man who gets his daily bread by laboring for them. Taking the view of the matter, as stated above, the course of the mill owners does not do credit to their high standing as the men of wealth and intelligence they are.

We copy the above somewhat long extract because it is well balanced and temperate and appears to put the matter in a reasonable light. It emphasizes our contention all along that there is just now, when these troubles are only beginning, need of forbearance, kindness and toleration on both sides. There ought to be a disposition to recognize the rights of each party in the case, and this being done there is a reasonable basis for the existence of "that harmony between the owners and operatives," which the mill men mention as so essential to the success of all. Without it there cannot be. We believe our mill owners, and we recognize the great work they are doing for the South and in many cases for the operatives themselves, are making a mistake in trying to crush the organizations of their employees. It is folly to think that labor, organized everywhere else in this country, will long remain unorganized in the South, and we think it is a mistake to not recognize this fact and meet it kindly, justly, instead of merely staving off the inevitable hour.

We call attention to the last paragraph in the article copied above. The Gleaner rightly speaks of the high character, the intelligence, and standing of our mill owners. It makes a just distinction between owner and operative, and while there is call for reasonableness on the part of the latter, it can hardly be so much expected of him. We would not overlook the fact that the owners and management of mills are often put to endless trouble, and are too often needlessly worried by their help, it is so in all work where help is required. But that is one of the responsibilities that come with their position and they must be large enough and liberal enough to be forbearing. We do not desire to make any harsh criticism, but we cannot forbear to call attention to the Gleaner's evident attempt to present the case justly and temperately.

Speaking of the statement that all the prelates, except Archbishop Ireland, composing the Catholic Hierarchy of America are for Mr. Bryan in this campaign, the Charlotte Observer asks if "the fact that Bryan has the sympathy of such a large majority of the Catholic prelates means that they are not entirely satisfied with President McKinley's policy as it may affect the interests of their church in these new island possessions and that they hope for more from Mr. Bryan as President?" If it is true as the Observer's information says, that all but one of these officials are for Mr. Bryan, is it not an indication that the Catholic church prefers the United States to withdraw from the Philippines, as the Democrats contend that we should? There is no doubt that our presence in the islands threatens the interest of the Catholic church there.

Mark Hanna is spending this week in the northwest circulating the information that the Standard Oil trust, the sugar trust, and a large number of others have been killed by Papa McKinley.

THE SENATORIAL RACE.

In his speech at Fayetteville Mr. Simmons said never a word concerning his candidacy, nevertheless he is sawing considerable wood.—Durham Herald.

Col. Waddell is not without support. The Wilmington Star exhausted its cap case in printing the list of signers to a call for a Waddell mass meeting.—Raleigh Times.

Mr. Jarvis is out of the race and a three-cornered fight is on to the finish.—Concord Tribune.

The Messenger-Intelligencer believes that the most shameful chapter in the history of North Carolina politics is now being written. If it had been told three months ago that a single Democratic voter in the State would attempt to destroy the private character of Hon. F. M. Simmons, in order to bring about his defeat for the nomination for United States Senator, we could not believe it. That veiled attacks, vile insinuations, and secret assaults upon his good name would be made by his political enemies was to be expected, but how sharper than a serpent's tooth, are these things coming from members of a party that owes him so much.—Wadesboro Messenger-Intelligencer.

The withdrawal of Gov. Jarvis from the senatorial contest will doubtless leave it a three-cornered race at the finish, as it is now rather late for entries. This step of the ex-Governor is to Mr. Simmons' benefit, as off him the bulk of Mr. Jarvis' vote would have come.—Charlotte Observer.

CHARLOTTE MINISTERS AROUSED.

Vigorously Trying to Defeat the Erection of the Brewery—Judge Stevens on Gambling.

Correspondence of The Telegram.

Charlotte, Oct. 15.—In his charge to the grand jury this morning Judge Stephens, of Asheville, made some strong utterances on the subject of gambling. He said: "It is strange that the only gamblers ever caught in the meshes of the law are the 'crapshooters,' the street gamins.

"They should be punished of course, but they are little fish. The big fish, the poker players who play behind locked doors and curtained windows and burn midnight oil, are rarely brought to punishment. I charge you as a grand jury, if you know of a gambling hell or den, it is your duty to present the offenders, no matter who they are."

The ministers conference today, unanimously adopted vigorous resolutions of protest against the erection of the proposed $3,000 brewery at Charlotte. The resolutions give the reasons of the ministers for opposing the brewery and they characterize the manufacturing and sale of beer as evil and evil only. The ministers in their protest conclude: "In consideration of these and kindred reasons we appeal to the citizens to unite with us in the use of all legitimate means to thwart and avert the consummation of the impending evil."

A Noble Charity.

Richmond Evening News.

It is understood that General Julian S. Carr, of North Carolina, has contracted with the Lafferty Mill to supply every Southern Methodist minister with the famous "Complete Flour," and every minister of every denomination in North Carolina at the cost of production.

General Carr's use of the flour, tallying with the opinions of a long array of bankers, jurists, physicians, presidents of colleges, ministers as to its value for brain workers and persons with impaired digestion led him to put it into thousands of parsonages.

The Lafferty Mill was forced to duplicate its machinery for triturating the germ and oxygenizing the products, as the whole wheat berry is used. A superbly engraved booklet with portrait of General Carr and their scientific method of milling has been issued by the Laffertys.

The Bryan Dinner to Cost $5 a Plate. New York, Oct. 15.—Richard Croker today emphatically denied the story that $50,000 has been contributed by him as coming to Tammany Hall from the Democratic national committee. This committee has not given one single dollar, he said, to either the Democratic State or the Democratic national committee. "It is not true," he continued, "that the dinner for Bryan tomorrow night is to cost $50 a plate. It will cost $5 a plate."

IMPORTANT!

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 26th, 1900.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS:

On and after October 15th, 1900, we, the undersigned, will do a strictly cash business. Our reasons are as follows:

1st. Absolute NECESSITY.
2nd. Laundry, the world over, is a recognized cash business and justly so.
3rd. Our accounts are necessarily small, and it causes an endless amount of confusion and expense to collect, besides losses each year in bad bills.

4th. All of our current expenses, such as labor, fuel, gas and supplies are cash, hence the stand we take is forced upon us. While we very much regret, in most cases, to exact the spot cash, yet we must treat all alike, and we see no other way out of the difficulty. We trust our customers will lend us their aid by stating when to return laundry and by being prepared to pay for same when delivered. Our drivers will have positive instructions to return to the laundry all packages not paid for.

We have on sale at office (for cash) coupon books from $1 to $5 which can be left at convenient place at home, so that on delivery of bundle the amount of laundry bill can be torn out by the driver.

VERY RESPECTFULLY,

MONDAY

"Opportunity" and advantage will meet you at our doors and introduce you to the field of glittering bargains which await you here at Satisfaction's citadel. Revelation of beauty. It is really an education on what to wear to go through our store. Hundreds of ladies thronged our store this week, and all were charmed with the goods and prices. They left feeling thankful they had taken advantage of our offerings.

Great Store Where Women Meet--To Buy

Every day something new pops up in each department, and about as quickly disappears. So, if something choice—a little different—if wanted, be sure and come Monday then, and see the new dress goods—beautiful plaids for fall dresses are here representing every known weave in the dress goods world.

We are very anxious to get you acquainted with our new goods. Of course we don't expect you to gratify your wishes just because we want you to do so. We know that our business affairs are of no particular interest to you unless you can do better here than elsewhere. That is why we want to urge upon you the fact that we are "DIRECT FACTORY REPRESENTATIVES" and can save you money on every thing you buy. Monday is a big day with us and it is important that you so arrange your household affairs as to be among the first that crowd around our bargain counters. Extra clerks employed to wait upon the throngs. "Be quick!"

Col. Brodie's Two Wounds

Famous Rough Rider's Story of Two Thrilling Episodes in His Eventful Career.

"IT WAS a strange coincidence," said Col. Brodie, the second in command of the famous rough riders, the other day, as he with a few of that scattered band of famous fighters were waiting for a train to Williams. "It's a strange coincidence that I was wounded when I was a lieutenant, just fresh from West Point, on the 24th day of June, by Apaches out here, and it was the 24th day of June, over 20 years later, I was wounded at Los Guaymas, in Cuba, and nearly in the same place."

"I was nothing but a kid then, and was stationed at Fort Grant. A short time afterward I was sent to Fort Apache during the outbreak in '73, built up the place, and was helping to keep the red cusses in shape there with a few men. I rode into the country on horseback, over 700 miles, and you'd have to ride 750 more miles to get to the nearest point on the railroad to the north."

"We had been cooped up at Fort Apache for over four months without any mail; the men were getting restless—guess it was enough to make them restless, too, for we expected the whole herd of Apaches down on us at any time. You never could tell what old Geronimo would do. One day the captain gave me a detail of 15 men and told me to go to Fort Grant for mail and a few supplies. It was over 100 miles and through the Indian country all the way, hills and desert where a jackrabbit would have trouble to keep on a trail. About half way out, eight of my troopers deserted. There was no use in my trying to get them back again, for you couldn't find them in the first place to get them back again, and I couldn't have taken them back with me if I had found them, because I didn't have enough men to do it."

"We had been dodging hostile bands of Indians for some time before we had a brush with them. Coming up through a long draw we jumped up a band of about 15 or 20 and the music commenced. There was no way of getting in any fancy moves on them, we were in the bottom of a long draw, or canyon, just about wide enough for an ordinary road. It was either go ahead, retreat or climb a side of the canyon. There wasn't much to hesitate over; we would have had a long retreat down that draw and been potted if we attempted to climb the sides of the canyon. My sergeant was an old-timer, as were a number of my little band. They knew as well as I did that the only thing that would save us was a quick dash right into them—something that the Indian can't stand a little bit unless they outnumber you ten to one. We gave them a volley to stir them up, and let them know we were coming, and had the satisfaction of seeing three or four of them drop, then, yelling like a lot of hyenas, we started down the draw on a dead run, headed straight into them. Each trooper swung out his six-shooter ready for a snap-shot at the first Indian he could reach. The old sergeant was close at my heels, with every fellow hugging down close to the saddle. I turned half around in my saddle just before we struck them, and as I did so a bullet broke through my saddle horn and another cut through my vest and ripped me across the stomach about a half-inch deep."

"The 'Paches couldn't stand the rush. We run them up the canyon about a mile before they could find any side breaks to get out of and scatter. We lost three troopers in the fight. After it was over we went back to where they were, rolled them in their blankets and buried them among the rocks as best we could. There wasn't much ceremony or tears for the poor fellows—we hadn't time for it; we all expected the same thing all the time; besides there was a splendid possibility of the whole bunch of us going the same way before we got through, without anyone left to roll us in a blanket. If the 'poor' Indian gathered in a band of blue-coats, he also gathered up their hair, and left a flock of buzzards to do the rest."

"After burying the troopers we struck a trail up the canyon side and camped in a clearing where we could command a view of the country surrounding, and doctored up our wounds as best we could; mine was painful, but only a flesh wound. I think I was sorer over my ruined new coat and vest than from the wound."

"The band of Indians circled around our camp again that afternoon, and we exchanged long shots with them, without doing any damage to either side. As soon as night came we struck out for Fort Grant as fast as we could make it through the night, and eluded them. An Indian won't fight at night, anyway, unless you force him to."

"We reached the fort late the next day. The closer we came to it the less danger there was, for troops from the fort kept the country round pretty well cleaned up and quiet."

"We stayed at the fort for several days, until our wounds healed, before making a return trip. The colonel in command of the fort insisted on my staying there for a time, as there were over 200 hostile Indians on the warpath scattered all over that country. He told me that it was foolish to make the attempt, and never expected to see me alive again, but I was young, and had told the captain I'd be back as soon as I could make the trip with the mail and supplies, and wouldn't stay."

"I didn't know it at the time, but learned afterward, that the Indians I had the running fight with coming over belonged to a sub-chief and a relative of old Geronimo, but I found it out coming back. We hadn't been out two days when they sighted us; luckily, it happened just about sundown. They took a few shots at us, then went into camp just over a hill from where we were camped. We could hear them holding powwows and singing while making preparations to dangle our scalps in their belts the next day."

"I remember I sat looking into the campfire that night, wishing I was back home and wondering what in thunder to do, when the old sergeant came over to me and asked:

"Lieutenant, you don't think we can lick that hull outfit, do you?"

"No, sergeant; I don't. What do you think we'd better do?"

"Well, I think we had better build up a big fire, so they kin see it, then drift out of this."

"And we did. We struck a trail and followed it all that night. About daylight we found ourselves on a hill top and right in the center of an old, deserted Indian village. It was that night's trip that first gave me my high appreciation of the much maligned old government mule. Every mule in that pack train seemed to understand the situation and there wasn't a whimper or a Bray from any one of the lot until we had put a good night's travel between us and that gang of redskins."

"We didn't have any more trouble in getting back to the fort, though we crossed a number of warm trails of bands. I met the chief when he came into the fort a long time after to make peace, and he told me how many times he had shot at me on that trip and couldn't understand how it was that he never got me."

"The wound that I got at Los Guaymas, in Cuba, was another lucky one, too. You remember, Sellers, how A and B troops of the regiment were lined up that day at the foot of the hill, and we were getting a perfect hell of fire from the Spanish entrenched up on top of the hill? Well, I was walking up and down before my battalion, and had orders to hold them fast to protect our right flank from the enfilade fire on the right. I had just turned around and waved my glove at them to hold fast, and dropped my hand to my side again, when a Mauser struck me in the arm. If I hadn't dropped my arm just as I did, the ball would have cut me straight through the center. It turned me around and knocked me down, but in a short time I gathered myself up, went to the rear to see how badly I was hit, and found that the bone was badly shattered. It was three days before I had the wound attended to. There was a lump on the inside of my arm, and when the surgeon examined it he said it was a piece of bone sticking out, and that he would have to cut it out. He made a cut across the lump and out popped the bullet, wrong end first. If it had come straight, as most of them do, it would never have stopped in the arm, but went on straight through me."

"The following day I wandered around back of the firing line trying to help the poor fellows that were worse off than I was, and I remember seeing one of the A troop boys—Buck O'Neill's company, coming down the road with tears running down his cheeks and I thought he must be wounded badly. He saw me and yelled:

"Hello, major, where is the firing line?" I told him it was away on ahead in the other direction, but the fight was over."

"Then he seemed to feel worse than ever, and broke out with as choice a lot of ornamental cuss words as I ever heard a mule driver get rid of, and wound up by saying:

"It's a shame that a feller comes all the way here from Arizona to fight and then gets knocked out by the climate within a few yards of the firing line."

"That forced march was the hardest I ever saw. Packed down with about 50 pounds of blankets, rations and other stuff in that hot country, we double-quick right by the regulars, that were coming up at a good stiff gait, too, right straight into trouble. Fellows would drop out of the ranks along the line of march like they were shot, some of 'em wouldn't come to for a day or two after and some never were right afterwards."

"Teddy Roosevelt came over to my tent at four o'clock in the morning after the fight and woke me up to tell me that the Arizona boys made his regiment. He said he knew that I knew it, but wanted to tell me that he knew it and wanted to tell it first."

"There's a fellow, that Teddy; full of life, vigor and energy, that enjoys living and fighting. I was in New York after he was elected governor and went over to Albany to call on him at the capitol. I hardly expected to see him, as he was busy, but thought I'd just send in my card to let him know I was in town. I met the secretary at the door and asked him to take in my card to the governor. He told me there was no use, the governor was busy on some important case or other, and there were several delegations of lawyers arguing something before him. I insisted that he take in the card, anyway, and handed it to him. He took a look at it and went in. In a minute he came back with a smile on his face and said that the governor wanted me to come right in.

"When I went in he squinted across the room to see who it was, held up his hands at the fellows talking, and rushed across the room to me with both hands stuck out—the same old Teddy I knew in Cuba. After he talked a few minutes he turned, waved his hand at the waiting lawyers with a look on his face as much as to say: 'See what rot I have to stand all the time,' then said: 'It's fun being governor, though, and I rather like it.'"

"A third shot I guess would get me, but I've got enough of it. All I want now is for that mine near Wick-erberg to pan out and I'll be satisfied."

whose relatives are confined in the Pretoria race track as prisoners of war. In times of peace the position of the consular agent at Pretoria is not an important one. His duties include the issuing of consular certificates on all American goods imported into the Transvaal, and he is also supposed to look after the interests of the 4,000 or more Americans who make their homes in Pretoria or in the country thereabouts. As there is practically nothing exported from the Transvaal to the United States, he has little to do in that direction. To get to Pretoria under present conditions Mr. Hay will probably go first to Cape Town and will there board a steamer which will carry him to Delagoa bay. There he will probably be able to get a train which will take him to Pretoria.

There are two difficulties in the way of the completeness of our faith—the greatness of the truth and the meagerness of our lives. It is so vast, this vision of the unseen, and we are so little, so dwarfed in its touch.—Rev. J. N. Blanchard.

The path Christ pointed out, the heavenward ascent, through the soul, is the open door set before us to the highest self-realization. No man can shut it but yourself, for in Him all the rich past centers, all the spiritual potentialities of the race reside.—Rev. Morgan Millar.

THE USEFUL GIRAFFE.

How Driver Bill Came to Be Shifted from the Band Wagon.

"On the road," said the old showman, "we always used to look to the giraffe to supply us with apples. He was a tremendous big giraffe, about 18 feet high, and he could reach almost any tree in the orchard; all we had to do was to drive him up alongside the fence.

"The giraffekeeper's particular friend in the circus was the driver of the band wagon, a man named Gabsy, and whenever we came to an apple orchard the keeper always used to see that his friend Bill was well supplied. The giraffe's place in the line on the road was just ahead of the band wagon, and whenever Bill came along and saw the giraffe at work, why, he'd just haul up and wait for the giraffe to have been sure to get, for the giraffe had been taught to hand up apples to the man on the high seat till the man told him to stop.

"At the ends the band chariot swept upward with a great curve. At the rear end, away up in the air, was the bass drum; at the forward end, just under the back of the driver's seat, was the big bass horn. The man who played the bass horn in our band could probably get more thunder out of that massive instrument than any other man that ever played one, and he was proud of it, of course. But he was too powerful to suit the driver of the band wagon. Bill liked music as well as anybody, and if anything he liked the bass horn a little better than any other instrument; but he didn't like quite so much of it as he got in the band wagon. He was driving a 20-horse team, and he was just as proud of his driving as the bass horn player was of his playing; and he used to say that the vibrations of the wagon at that end caused by the heavy blasts of the horn shook the wagon so much that he couldn't do his driving justice, and he asked the bass horn player to let up a little on parades, but of course he never did.

"One day, late in summer, when we came to an orchard of beautiful red apples, the keeper of the giraffe at once set the animal to work; and when the band wagon came along Bill halted, as he always did, to get his share. It was a still, drowsy day, the jolting had been just enough to keep the flies off, and the whole band was scattered along the band wagon asleep, from the bass drummer up at the other end with his head resting on his arms and the great drum in front of him, down along the whole length of the wagon to the front seat, where, with one or two others, under the overarching rear edge of the driver's seat, sat the big horn player, the great horn beside him, the bell opening upward under the edge of the driver's seat, like a rainwater gask under the eaves of a house. Driver Bill leaned over back, and dropped the first apple that the giraffe handed him into the mouth of the big horn, and he kept on dropping them there as fast as the giraffe handed them up. Altogether, he must have dropped into the big horn about a peck of apples, and the jolting of the wagon after that wedged 'em in pretty tight. We were taking a long jump that day; no day show, and no parade that day at all.

"That night when the bass horn player tried to sound his horn it wouldn't sound, and people missed it. You can't do without the oomphah, oomphah, oomphah of the big brass horn any more than you can without the sharp notes of the E-flat cornet, and folks began looking over toward the band to see what was the matter, and when they saw what the bass horn player was doing they called the attention of the others, and pretty soon the whole audience was looking over that way. They saw the leader leading, and everybody but the bass horn player playing right along as usual. The bass horn player was trying to play, pushing in keys and valves and blowing himself red in the face, but making no sound at all. But suddenly there shot out of the mouth of the great instrument, like a ball out of a roman candle, a single big red apple. Then all of a sudden the big horn began roaring and rumbling and spouting red apples like a fireworks.

"Even the clown laughed, and it was 15 minutes before the audience got quieted down enough so that the show could go on.

"Of course, the old man had to know all about it, and the upshot of it all was that Driver Bill was sent back to the tiger cage, and the driver of the tiger cage was promoted to the band wagon. And after that the bass horn player used to play louder than ever. When he blew oomphah, oomphah, oomphah, now, the forward end of the heavy band wagon would surge and sway like a light carriage does when you jounce on the seat."—Alvin Dipperton, in Chicago Inter Ocean.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other ailments. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

Senator Hanna is scheduled to make thirty-seven speeches in four days during his tour of the Northwest this week.

There are in the United States thirty Berlins, twenty-one Hamburgs, twenty-three towns bearing the name Paris and thirteen Londons.

The Weldon Leader gets off this exquisite Tennysonian verse: No more he'll ever greet us, He's numbered with the blest, He got Appendicitis, And the doctors did the rest.

"I am sorry to see that women are returning to high heels again," said an instructor in a dancing school. "For evening dress, of course, high heels have always been worn, but they have been altogether absent from the streets for six or seven years, and there has sprung up, as a result, an army of young women whose feet are perfect. These are the young women of 20 or 21 who changed from the heel-less shoes of their childhood to grown-up shoes just at the time when the low heel became fashionable. Thus they have worn all their life, shoes that were well made, and their ankles are round and small and strong in consequence, and their slender, supple feet do not incline to one side or the other, but set firm and true. The mothers of these girls have lately begun to wear walking skirts. Compare, in that costume, the feet and ankles of a mother and a daughter, and you will realize how much toward beautifying the race, shoes wisely made have done for the younger generation. The mother's ankles seem, beside the daughter's, awkward. They wobble, and the feet, not setting firmly, wear down the shoes. Really, for the mother, a walking skirt is a give-away. But, hang it, the daughter, too, will look just as bad in a few years if she gets to wearing all the time flimsy, high-heeled shoes that you see so much of now."—Philadelphia Record.

"Confound your deuced mosquitoes," exclaimed the wrathful English tourist; "they seem to have a particular spite against me." "Yes," returned the waghishotelkeeper, "they're dreadful bores you know."

THE WEATHER.

For North Carolina: Fair tonight and Wednesday. Colder in Western portion Wednesday. Light to fresh northeast winds.

Highest temperature for Greensboro for the past twenty-four hours ending eight o'clock this morning 70, lowest, 50.

AROUND THE TOWN.

Brief Incidents of a Day—What is Happening in Greensboro.

The Burlington fair is on this week.
A number of Greensboro people will attend.

Wharton Brothers' book store is closed on account of the death of Mrs.
Jane Rankin.

The warehouses had good sales of tobacco today. Prices are said to be on the up-grade.

The police officers were today requested to look out for a Monarch bicycle that was stolen in High Point
last night.

The barber shops of Greensboro now close at 8 instead of 9 o'clock in the evening, as heretofore, except on Saturdays, when they will remain open until midnight.

Rev. Dr. Rowe is this week conducting revival services in West Market Street Methodist church. There will be preaching this evening, and every evening during the week, at 7:30 o'clock.

Mr. J. Y. Whitted today showed The Telegram one of his early-blooming chrysanthemums. It is of the pink variety, quite large and very pretty.
They do not usually bloom until about November 10th.

The registration books will be open at the polling places from the 22nd to the 27th, instead of this week, as stated in yesterday's Telegram. The mistake was due to one of the registrars, who requested that the notice be inserted.

The general agent, Mr. G. H. Royster, says the Endowment Rank, the insurance department of the Knights of Pythias, is steadily growing. The amount of insurance now being written is averaging about $2,000,000 a month.

DOINGS OF THE ALDERMEN.

The Water Question Comes Up for Discussion and is Postponed Until Tonight.

The Board of Aldermen met in regular session last night, the meeting having been postponed from Friday night.
All the members were present and Mayor Taylor presided.

The firemen's committee reported that it had given Mr. John A. Hodgins permission to move a wooden building on South Elm for the purpose of making room for a brick building on the lot to be vacated.

Mr. G. C. Coggins was granted permission to sell fresh meats and fish at his grocery store on West Lee street.

By invitation Mr. R. R. King and Gen. J. D. Glenn appeared before the board and made an explanation regarding the financial condition of the Greensboro Water Supply Company.
It was stated that the apparent discrepancy between former statements and Alderman Boyd's report was due to a misunderstanding as to what constituted running expenses and net proceeds.

The aldermen discussed the matter
at some length, but took no action.
An adjournment was taken until tonight, when the question will again come up.

ASLEEP IN DEATH.

The Spirit of Mrs. Jane Rankin Passes
From Earth to Heaven.

Mrs. Jane Rankin died about 4 o'clock this morning at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Jesse R. Wharton.
She had been in feeble health for a year or more, but was seriously ill for only three days.

Mrs. Rankin was in the eighty-fourth year of her age and was the widow of the late Persis Rankin. She leaves three children—Mrs. J. R. Wharton, Mrs. W. Calvin Rankin and Miss Callie Rankin, besides a host of other relatives.

The deceased was a beautiful Christian character and a devout member of the Presbyterian church. She had patiently awaited the end for years and was ready for the summons.

The funeral service will be conducted from the home of Mr. Wharton, her son-in-law, tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Interment will be made in the old Presbyterian grave yard,
where the remains of her husband lie.

Cure Cold in Head.

Kermott's Chocolate Laxative Quinine, easy to take and quick to cure cold in head and throat.
